Esther 7.

(2014)

The Bible not only reveals God's eternal plans purposes and promises
But also shows how you can know God for yourself.

Teach it, don't demand it.

- The king has Haman hanged on the gallows he built for Mordecai.

INTRODUCTION: this is a brilliant story of the great faith of a young humble Jewish woman who became Queen of the Persian Empire that has a beautiful twist at the end and that clearly shows that God's sovereign hand is not only upon the Jewish nation, but also upon the secular nations to bring about his eternal plans and purposes. The primary focus of this study is upon the core beauty of the story and not upon the detail of the places or the history of it (see also the introduction to chapter one).

NOTE: for information of people, places and the meaning of words see Map Locations and People of the Bible, and Bible Dictionary on Website Menu.

The king and Haman went in to feast with Queen Esther and on the second day (i.e., the day after the first feast of the previous day), as they were drinking wine after the feast, the king again said to Esther, "What is your wish and your request, Queen Esther? Then Queen Esther answered, "If it, please the king: -

- Let my life be granted me for my wish, and for my request, let my people live for we have been sold, I and my people, to be destroyed, to be killed, and to be annihilated.

Then King Ahasuerus said to Queen Esther, "Who is he, and where is he, who has dared to do this?" And Esther said, "A foe and enemy! This, wicked Haman!" and the king was furious. Then Haman was terrified before the king and the queen and begged Queen Esther for his life.

Then Harbona, one of the king's eunuchs told the king that Haman has built a gallows outside his house to hang Mordecai on whose word saved the king. The king said, "Hang Haman on that." So they hanged Haman on the gallows that he had prepared for Mordecai. Then the wrath of the king abated.

Ponder for a moment: the tremendous evil, pride and ego of Haman's heart, just because a Jewish man wanted to be true to his faith and only bow to his God Haman was so enraged with fury he not only plotted to kill every Jewish man, but also plotted to kill every Jewish woman and child in all the one-hundred and twenty-seven provinces of the king. Imagine his horror and fear when he began to see that his entire plan was backfiring on him. Truly he came to a just end. No wonder the Jews even today still keep the feast of Purim which celebrates the story of Queen Ester and the great Jewish victory.

End.
