The Chief Priest who had been consecrated to wear the garments and whose head the anointing oil was poured was not to let his hair hang loose, tear his clothes, or go near any dead body even for his father or his mother. They were not to go out of the sanctuary, because the consecration of the anointing oil of his God was on him. The chief priest was not to marry a widow, a divorced woman, a woman who has been defiled, or a prostitute, he could take a virgin of his own people as his wife so that he would not profane his offspring among his people.

Laws concerning Aaron's Sons.

Aaron sons were not to offer the Bread of God or a Food offering or go through the Veil or approach the Altar if they were blind or had a defect in their sight. If they had a mutilated face an injured foot or hand, a limb too long, were lame or a hunchback, a dwarf, or had an itching disease, scabs or crushed testicles or had any blemish in their body, but they could eat the Bread of God and the Food offerings.

Laws for the Priests.

No priest was to touch any dead body and make themselves unclean except for his closest relatives he could touch the dead body of his mother, father, daughter or his virgin sister who had no husband because he was near to her (he could make himself unclean for her). The priest was not to marry a prostitute, a woman who had been defiled or a divorced woman, or make bald patches on his head, shave off the edges of his beard or make cuts on his body. He was to be holy to God and not profane His Name because he offered the LORD'S food offerings. If a daughter of any priest profaned her father by whoring, she was to be burned.

Moses spoke all these laws to Aaron, his sons
And to all the people of Israel.
